– Joe Brandom, A Cut Above

A Cut Above are a Northamptonshire landscape, maintenance and tree care company who are passionate about helping the environment, whilst giving back to their community. Their values have resulted in them teaming up with The Lewis Foundation and offering years of important donations and support. This could be seen as an unlikely alliance but when it comes to supporting charities, who’s to say what makes a dream partnership? As Joe Brandom, the Managing Director of A Cut Above, told us: “Businesses have the biggest impact to make change” and that’s exactly what Joe and his team are doing.

Established in 2014, even as a new company, Joe instantly saw the great work the charity were trying to achieve and has worked with them since The Lewis Foundation began in 2016: “I met the charity’s co-founder Lee at Northampton General Hospital, we had the same physician and after hearing his story about his mum, and what he and his wife Lorraine were trying to achieve, I wanted to get involved and help in any way I could.” Six years on, Joe and his colleagues are still supporting the charity through various activities including charitable days, volunteering, and lump sum donations.

Thousands of pounds have been raised thanks to Joe and the team at A Cut Above over the years, money that has been put towards products, items, and everyday essentials for The Lewis Foundation gift bags.

When we asked Joe about the benefits of working with The Lewis Foundation, he acknowledged: “We support The Lewis Foundation not to raise awareness of our business A Cut Above, but to help them raise awareness of the thoughtful gift bags they provide to adults facing cancer treatment. It really is a great cause. Their gift bags make such a difference, but their volunteers also offer support, company, and a listening ear during an incredibly lonely and scary time too. For me, it’s not about the money, it’s about the people we help as a business.”

If you would like to help too, The Lewis Foundation is currently looking for more business and corporate partners to sponsor and support their work.
